Designing for the Full Range of Human Experience

Accessible Design Integration

A presentation by Marthalee Galeota, Starbucks Coffee Company

Thursday, February 9, 2017 • 10:00–11:00 a.m.
Center for Architecture & Design
1010 Western Avenue, Seattle

The Northwest Universal Design Council and community partners invite you to attend a special presentation on accessible design integration by Marthalee Galeota, access and disability program manager for the Starbucks Coffee Company. Ms. Galeota leads disability initiatives and strategic planning, collaborates and advises business units on universal design and access, manages interpreter services, and designs and creates training programs on disability and access. She is nationally certified as an American Sign Language interpreter with specialist skills in Braille and tactile interpreting. She is on the boards of the Northwest ADA Center and Washington Governor’s Disability Employment Task Force.

Attend the presentation to learn how organizations can make a broader commitment to human-centered design and ensure a more meaningful experience for people of all abilities. View the “Open to All: Designing for the Full Range of Human Experience” exhibit at the Center for Architecture & Design and ask questions before and after the formal program. Doors open at 9:30 a.m. Free and open to the public.

ASL interpretation, CART captioning, a counter loop for close-range T-coil reception, and personal amplification devices will be provided. If you need any other accommodation in order to participate, need materials in an alternate format, or have accessibility questions, e-mail irene.stewart@seattle.gov at your earliest opportunity. RSVP at www.surveymonkey.com/r/NWUDC020917.

The Northwest Universal Design Council (NWUDC) promotes incorporation of Universal Design principles, products, and processes in the built environment so that all people can “live actively by design,” regardless of age or ability. The NWUDC is supported by the Seattle Human Services Department/Aging and Disability Services, the Area Agency on Aging for Seattle-King County (www.agingkingcounty.org).
